MRS. BEACH TEMPORARILY FREE A Jury Will Pass Upon the Question Her Sanity Next Week.

In obedience to Justice O'Brien's order Mr. court shortly after 10 o'clock yesterday morn ing. Albert Bach, the Anti-Kidnapping League's lawyer, and William F. Howe hovered around while Justice O'Brien took Mrs. Beach into his private room to question her restraint as some of her friends and the Auti-Kidnapping League claim. Bronson Murray. who had met with such an unrieasant experience at Mrs. Beach's home the day before when he called to take Mrs. Beach to court. was present. Mrs. Cornella S. Robinson, her next friend." was there, too. Mrs. Beach's conference with the Judge was a long one, and when it was over Justice O'Brien announced to both sides that in accordance with Mrs. Beach's request he would order a jury trial to determine the question of her sanity. She had no objection, he said, to remaining at her own home, and would prefer to stay there. The Judge said there appeared to be no indications that she was under restraint, but as she was desirous of having her mental condition passed upon by a jury he would order a jury trial for Friday of next week at 10% A. M. When Mrs. Beach stepped out among the lawyers, relatives and friends who were awaiting her there was a scene. Mrs. Hobinson greeted her affectionately and old Mr. Murray offered his congratulations. Mrs. Beach was dressed in a gray gown and were a black bonnet. Her hair is gray and the spectacles she wore heightened the appearance of old age. When Mrs. Beach heard the Judge's decision she turned to Lawyer Howe and said:

"Are you going Lawyer Howe and said:

"Are you going Lawyer for me or against maining at her own home, and would prefer to of-ion she turned to Lawyer Howe and said:
"Are you going to appear for me or against me, Mr. Howe, on that trial?"
"Most certainly for you, my dear lady," said Mr. Howe, gailantly, "to see that you get your rights and to get you out of the hands of the unprincipled adventurers, some of whom are within sound of my volce."
Mr. Bash hared up at this, and wanted to know if Mr. Howe referred to him.
"Oh, no," said Mr. Howe, "but there are some of that stripe here," and he cast a glance
at Mr. Murray.
"I'd like to know," persisted Mrs. Beach, ad-

at Mr. Murray.

"Id like to know." persisted Mrs. Beach. addressing herself sgain to Mr. Howe. "whether you are going to unbold the doctors who will testify about me on the trial?"

"I will see that your rights and those of your family are preserved." replied Mr. Howe, with a courtly bow.

"Well. now. ll. now. am I free to go where I wish?" "No one will hinder you," replied Mr. Howe.
"You are at perfect liberty to go where you

Mr. Murray stepped up at this and offered

Mr. Murray stepped up at this and offered his arm. With Mrs. Robinson and Mr. Murray on either side Mrs. Beach started off in ope direction and her husband went in another.

Mrs. Beach spent a long time at Mr. Bach's office in the Morse building, and when she left twas in company with her two friends in order to hunt up witnesses for her trial.

"She tells me." said Lawyer Bach afterward.

"that she would prefer to stay at her own home, provided she is not kept under restraint. She sars that yesterday, when Mr. Murray called to escort her to court, she was restrained by her son and daughter from accompanying Mr. Murray. She knew, she said, that they acted on the orders of her husband.

"Mrs. Beach has no money of her own and it is all nonsense to say that she was going to give. The only motivo Mrs. Beach's relatives had for putting her in an asylum was because they thought themselves disgraced by her actions. Her ideas on spiritualism she had had for many years, but it was not until she began to lecture and gain a little notoriety that her relatives made any move for her commitment. We intend to make a strong right on the question of her insanity, both in behall of the league and of Mrs. Beach herself."

FINDS IT HARD THAT HE CAN'T DIE. Broker Landauer May Recover—His Feat that His Child Would be Taken from Him. Nine times out of ten a man who tries to commit suicide and only succeeds in ploughing some ugly, painful holes in his body is content to get well and bear the ordinary ills of flesh with courage and even with cheerful-ness. Not so Leopold Landauer, the broker, whose wife obtained a divorce from him on Tuesday morning, and who shot himself in the Cooper Union Hotel early in the evening of the Two builets penetrated his head a short dis-tance, but not in fatal places. The third entered his left breast, following a course as yet undiscovered. Dr. Munwitz, who has charge o the case in Bellevue Hospital, thinks the bullo was deflected by the ribs and lies buried in the muscles of the back, and Landauer may pull through. Instead of being pleased with this state of affairs, he spends all his waking moments in deploring the fact that be is still alive. His little son Edgar, 35, yaars old, is with his mother at her parents' home, 208 East Fiftyeighth street. When Landauer was taken to the hospital he saked to see his son. His request was carried to Mrs. Landauer. About half past 3 yesterday morning her father. Mr. Hosenthal, and his youngest daughter entered the hospital with the boy. They had not told him where he was going, and when his aunt said. You are going in to see your papa. he began to kick and scream, and cried: "I won't see papa Leo. I want to go home." The officer who was with the party said: "For heaven's sake take him home. He locks as though he were going to have a fit." So they took him away without his seeing his father and without Landauer's knowing that he had been there. was deflected by the ribs and lies buried in the swey without his seeing his father and without Landauer's knowing that he had been there.

Last Monday night Landauer called at Coroner Levy's house. "I had known him for a long time," the Coroner said yeaterday. "He was a member of two of the lodges I belong to. He came of a good family, and he is an educated gentleman. He was greatly agitated when he came to my house, and while he watted to see me he waked up and down the sidewalk. "I want you to help one, he walled when I came out. 'You know about my wife's divorce suit? There is to be a decision rendered to morrow, and if she gets a decree against me they will take my boy away from me. All my friends have failed me. Won't you help me? He wanted me to go down to the court room and plead with the Judge to let him keep the boy. 'If they take him away from me,' he cried,' It will kill me."

Mrs. Landauer is in a state of nervous prostration. Bhe says she will never be reconciled to Landauer. The Bosenthals say they don't think Mr. Landauer shot himself because of the divorce. They say that Mrs. Rosenthal, far from netting her daughter in leaving her husband, bore with his shortcomings.
